The Toast.

[The following is one of the finest productions of the late Sir Walter Scott, and we are inclined to believe that it can not be read without causing the blood to tingle.]

The feast is o'er! Now brimming wine
In lordly cup is seen to shine
Before each eager guest;
And silence fills the crowded hall,
As deep as when the herald's call
Thrills in the royal breast.

Then up arose the noble host
And smiling cried, 'A toast! a toast!
To all our ladyes fair.
Here, before all, I pledge the name
Of Staunton's proud and beauteous dame—
The Ladye Gundamere!'

Then to his feet each gallant sprung,
And joyous was the shout that rung
As Stanley gave the word:
And every cup was raised on high,
Nor ceased the loud and gladsome cry,
Till Stanley's voice was heard.

'Enough, enough,' he smiling said,
And lowly bent his haughty head,
'That all may have their due,
Now each in turn must play his part,
And pledge the ladye of his heart,
Like gallant knight and true!'

Then one by one each guest sprung up
And drained in turn the brimming cup,
And named the loved one's name;
And each, as hand on high he raised,
His ladye's grace or beauty praised,
Her constancy and fame.

'Tis now St. Leon's turn to rise;
On him are fixed those courtly eyes—
A gallant knight is he.
Envied by some, admired by all,
Far-famed in ladye's bower and hall,
The flower of chivalry.

St. Leon raised his kindling eye,
And lifts the sparkling cup on high:
'I drink to ONE,' he said,
'Whose image never may depart,
Deep graven on this grateful heart,
Till memory be dead.

'To one whose love for me shall last
When lighter passions long have passed,
So holy 'tis and true;
To one whose love hath longer dwelt,
More deeply fixed, more keenly felt,
Than any pledged by you.'

Each guest upstarted at the word,
And laid a hand upon his sword,
With fury flashing eye,
And Stanley said: 'We crave the name,
Proud knight, of this most peerless dame,
Whose love you count so high.'

St. Leon paused, as if he would
Not breathe her name in careless mood
Thus lightly to another:
Then bent his noble head as though
To give that word the reverence due,
And gently said, "MY MOTHER!"

Miscellaneous.

THE QUAKER AND THE ROBBER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY R. E. A. ATREE.

The most honest of all Quakers, Toby Simpton, lived in London, in a pleasant little dwelling graced by the presence of his daughter Mary. She was not quite seventeen years of age; was charmingly fair; had blue eyes, and possessed as much modesty as beauty. All the young men of her father's acquaintance were her suitors; all those of the neighborhood sought to gain her notice. Vain efforts! Mary was no coquette, and instead of enjoying the effect produced by her charms, she was vexed on account of the manners of all her admirers, except one Edward Weresford, a young artist, admitted to the intimacy of the family.

A very simple event had caused this friendship. A premature death had carried off the Quaker's wife. She was young and beautiful; and desiring to perpetuate the image of her who was so dear to him, he had caused the artist to come to the bed of death. It was there that Edward saw the desolate damsel; it was there a serious first love took place, amid the tears of one and the pious work of the other. The year which elapsed after this epoch had but strengthened the bond formed under these auspices, and the young man had showed to the father both his desire and hope.

The excellent Toby had no reason whatever for opposing the mutual inclinations of the two young persons. Without being rich, Edward earned, by means of his pencil, what suffered to support a family honorably. His father, Mr. Weresford, an old merchant of the city, had retired from business with a fortune increased more than ten fold. This was a rare example of rapid success in speculation—so rapid indeed that few were able to follow its progress. Yet Weresford, of so blunt and stern disposition, lived alone in a suburb of London, and without caring what his son was doing, left him entirely at liberty. He was one of those accommodating egotists who trouble no one, provided they trouble not them—persons of perfect complaisance if you ask nothing of them.

Edward, therefore, could without interruption, court his pretty Quakeress, well assured that his father would never think of opposing his marriage. The situation of the loving couple was, to all appearance, very prosperous; and honest Toby did not put off the day of their marriage longer than to collect the arrearages of his rents: he destined the money for the extraordinary expenses of the ceremony. For this purpose he went to his country seat, some miles from London, in order to regulate his affairs. He had passed but one day from home; and as he was about to put up his horse for the night, he perceived at some distance a horseman, who had barred the road. He stopped uncertain whether to go on or turn back. Meanwhile the horseman advanced towards him. The Quaker could not even think of escaping; he therefore put on a good face, and brought his horse to a walk. In approaching the man who caused his uneasiness, he perceived that he was masked, a grievous augury, which was soon confirmed. The unknown showed a pistol and directed the muzzle to the traveller, demanding his purse. The Quaker did not want courage, but calm by character, inoffensive by religion, and even unable, without arms, to resist an armed man, he pulled from his pocket very coolly, a purse containing twelve guineas. The robber took it, counted the pieces, and left the poor man whom he had stopped, to pass on, while he put his horse to the trot. But the robber, seeing the slight resistance he had opposed, and allured by the hope of a second booty, immediately rejoined honest Toby, placed himself anew in his way, and presenting his pistol as before, cried out to him, "Your Watch!"

The Quaker, surprised, was nevertheless unmoved. He coolly took his watch from the fob, looked at the hour, and put the costly article into the hand of the robber, saying:

"Now, I beseech thee, permit me to go to my dwelling—my daughter will be uneasy at my absence."

"A moment more," replied the masked cavalier, the more and more hardened by this docility; "swear to me that you have no other sum—"

"I never swear," said the Quaker.

"Very well. Affirm that you have no other money, and on the faith of an honest robber, incapable of taking by violence from a man who yields with so good a grace, I will let you continue on your journey."

The Quaker reflected a moment and shook his head.

"What thinkest thou," he said gravely, "thou hast discovered that I am a Quaker, and will not betray the truth, though at the peril of my life. Thus I declare to thee that I have under my saddle cloth a sum of two hundred pounds sterling."

"Two hundred pounds sterling!" cried the robber, while his eyes sparkled through his mask.

"But if thou art good as thou art kind," replied the Quaker, "thou wilt leave me this money. I wish to establish my daughter, and this sum is necessary; for a long time I shall not have a similar sum at my disposal. The dear child loveth her intended, and it will be cruel to delay this union. Thou hast loved, peradventure, and thou wouldst not commit this wicked act."

"What care I for your daughter, and her lover and their marriage? Less talk, and more promptitude of execution! I must have this money."

Toby, with a sigh, lifted the cloth, took a bag heavy enough, and passed it slowly to the masked man. His intention then was to gallop off.

"Stop again, friend Quaker," said the other laying his hand upon the bridle; "as soon as you arrive, you will denounce me to the magistrates. This is according to order. I have nothing to say; but I must have the advance of the process of to-night, at least. My mare is feeble, and is, besides, fatigued; your horse, on the contrary, appears vigorous, for the weight of this bag does not incommode him. Alight and give me your beast; you may take mine, if you will."

He was slow in beginning to comply, because these cross exigencies were of a nature to raise the choler of the most patient man. The good Toby, however, descended, and resignedly took the sorry jade which was left him in exchange. "If I had known," he contented himself in thinking, "I would have fled at the first encounter with this rogue, and certainly it is not with this courser that he would have gained in the race."

During this time the masked man ironically thanking him for his complaisance, applied both spurs and disappeared.

Before he reached London, Toby had time to reflect on his misfortune, on the chagrin of the two young persons who loved, and whose happiness would be put off. The sum taken from him was irrevocably lost. Not the least of it could be regained, nor could the audacious robber be recognized. Meanwhile as a sudden idea struck him, he stopped.

"Yes," said he, "this means may succeed. If this man liveth in London, I may peradventure meet him again. Heaven, no doubt, hath willed that he should have been so very imprudent."

Somewhat consoled, by I know not what hope, Toby went home without showing any trouble, or saying aught of his adventure. He did not go to the magistrate, but embraced his daughter, who suspected nothing, and lay down and slept. His faith was in God.

Next day he secretly thought of cooperating with Providence in making research. He let the mare out of the stable where she had passed the night, and threw the bridle over her neck, in hopes that the animal, led by habit, would naturally go to the house of her master. He therefore sent off the poor beast which had been fasting, to wander at large through the streets of London, and followed her. But he supposed her to have more instinct than she had: for a long time she went right and left, making a thousand turns and returns without aim, without direction, sometimes at a stand, then taking a contrary course. Toby despaired. "My robber," thought he "doth not live in London. What folly in me! instead of going to the magistrate when I had the time, to have suffered myself to be led away by this wretched animal."

Suddenly, however, the beast pricked up her ears and set off on a brisk trot, followed closely by the Quaker.

"Stop! stop!" was the cry on all hands.

"Detain me not!" cried the Quaker; "I entreat you, detain me not!"

And anxiously following with his eye the course of the animal, he saw her rapidly entering the gate of a dwelling in the suburb.

"Tis here," thought the Quaker, raising his eyes toward heaven, in thanks to Providence.

In reality, in passing the house, he perceived in the court a domestic, who patted the poor beast and conducted her to the stable. He demanded at once the name of the proprietor of the house.

"What, have you never been in these parts?" was the answer, "that you don't know that this is the dwelling of the rich merchant, Weresford?"

The Quaker stood petrified.

"Weresford," repeated the neighbor, who believed that he had not understood him, "the man who made so rapid a fortune."

"Excuse me, my friend, excuse me," replied Toby.

He could not recover from his stupor. "Weresford, the father of Edward, a man of note, my robber!"

He believed he was dreaming, and desired to come to himself. Meantime many examples occurred to his memory of many respectable persons who were in league with banditti. Toby resolved to investigate the mystery.

He entered boldly into the court, and demanded to speak with the proprietor, who had just gone to bed, though it was near midday—a new indication of a night of fatigue! The Quaker insisted on being introduced, and soon found himself in Weresford's bedchamber. He not being used to being disturbed, rubbed his eyes and demanded with some impetience,

"Who are you, sir? What do you want with me?"

The sound of the voice was recognized by Toby, and thoroughly convinced him. He tranquilly drew a chair and seated himself at the bedside, his hat on his head.

"Do you remain covered?" cried the merchant, in surprise.

"I am a Quaker," answered the other, with much calmness, "and thou knowest that such is our usage."

At these words of the Quaker, Weresford sat up in bed and eyed the stranger. He doubtless recognized him, for he turned deadly pale.

"Well," demanded he, stammering, "what is it—if you please—the—the subject that you come about?"

"I ask thy allowance for appearing so pressing," answered Toby; "but between friends it matters not much, and I come without ceremony, to ask for the watch that thou borrowedst of me yesterday."

"The—watch?"

"I value it much; it belonged to my poor wife, and I cannot do without it. My excellent friend, the alderman, would never forgive me were I to fail for one day to return the jewel to his sister."

The name of an alderman appeared to make some impression upon Weresford. Without waiting an answer, Toby continued—

"Thou wilt do me the pleasure to return also the twelve guineas which I lent thee at the same time. Nevertheless if thou art in need of them, I consent to let thee have them for some time, on condition that thou givest me a receipt."

The scheme of the Quaker so disconcerted the old merchant that he could not deny the possession of the articles, but, not liking to acknowledge the crime, he hesitated to answer, when Toby added,

"I wish thee to participate at the approaching marriage of my daughter Mary. I had reserved the sum of two hundred pounds sterling for the bridal of the espoused, but an accident happened to me last night on the road to London—I was completely robbed, so I come to pray thee to give thy son a portion, which otherwise I would not have asked of thee."

"My son?"

"Yes. Dost thou not know that he is Mary's lover, and that 'tis he that is to marry her?"

"Edward!" exclaimed the merchant throwing himself from the bed.

"Edward Weresford," mildly replied the Quaker, while quietly taking a pinch of snuff. "Come, do this thing for him. I would not, verily, that he should know aught of what passed last night, and if thou dost not furnish him with the sum I promised, it will be well for me to tell him how I lost it."

Weresford ran to a bureau, and drew out a casket with a triple lock, opened it and returned successively to Toby his purse, his watch, and his bag of money.

"Very well," said the Quaker as he received them. "I see that I had reason to count on thee."

"Is this all that you see?" demanded the merchant with one of his blunt airs.

"Nay, I yet need something of thy friendship."

"Speak."

"Thou wilt disenherit him. I see not but that some one may say I have speculated on thy fortune."

In finishing these words the Quaker left the chamber.

"No," murmured he, when he found himself alone, "children are not answerable for the faults of their parents. Mary shall marry the son of this man, but the stolen money she shall never touch."

When he reached the court, he called out to Weresford, who had come to the window, "ho! my dear friend, I brought back thy mare, return my horse."

Some minutes afterwards, Toby, well mounted, carying by the top his bag of money, furnished with his watch and purse, reached home at a moderate trot.

"I" made a visit this morning to thy father, said he to Edward, whom he preceived entering with him; "I believe we shall now agree."

Two hours afterwards Weresford arrived at the house of Toby, and taking him apart, said:

"Honest Quaker, your proceedings have deeply affected my very soul! You might have dishonored me—dishonored my son; ruined me in his estimation, and caused the misfortune of refusing him your daughter. You have shown yourself a man in head and heart, I shall not again blush in your presence. Take these papers. Farewell! you will never see me again." And he departed.

The Quaker, left alone, opened the papers. They showed obligations of considerable value on the first bankers of London, with a long list of names, and opposite each name, in figures, the sum greater or less in amount. A billet was added wherein the Quaker read as follows:

"These are the names of persons who were robbed; the figures are the sums which ought to be restored; as to the money with the bankers, in my name, let it go to the strangers, but make the restitution secretly yourself. What remains will be my legitimate fortune, and your daughter will some day possess my estate."

The next day Weresford left London, and everybody was certain he had gone to spend his fortune in France.

On the day of the marriage, the Quaker brought together a company of merry friends, among whom were noticed a number of persons enchanted with the conduct of the robbers of London, who through the interposition of Toby, had made restitution of their lost capital with interest.

Bloody Chancellorsville.

A short time before his death the late Secretary Stanton said it pained him to see the opinion so prevalent that Mr. Lincoln was an habitual joker, and that he was never serious. Mr. Stanton said it was a great error, and related the following incident to prove the injustice of the popular impression:

Mr. Lincoln was very sensitive of the criticisms of the newspaper press, believing it, as he asserted, the true voice of the people. The failures of McDowell and McClellan and Burnside and Pope with the Army of the Potomac, and the accompanying criticisms of the newspapers, had almost crazed him. Time and again he would free himself from the White House, and seek Mr. Stanton's little office: the only place in Washington, he often remarked, where he was free from bores.

He often talked to Mr. Stanton of resigning, or of pressing upon Congress the propriety of giving to military or naval men the control of the army and navy. It was during this period that he conceived the idea of putting Hooker in command of the Army of the Potomac and have him make an effort for success. He had a good opinion of Hooker, thinking him to be an honest and sincere patriot and soldier. He put him in command, and did everything in his power to make him fight what he wanted to make the closing battle of the war. Accordingly, when Hooker got under way and news came that at Chancellorsville he would make his fight, Mr. Lincoln was in the greatest state of mental excitement. From the time that Hooker began to march, until the smoke of battle had fairly cleared from the fatal field of Chancellorsville, the President scarcely knew what it was to sleep. It will be remembered that the fight lasted three days. During the first two days it looked as if Hooker was about to accomplish what so many had failed to do, but early on the third day the usual half hour dispatches began to make matters look worse. That whole day Mr. Lincoln was miserable. He ate nothing, and would see no one but Mr. Stanton. As it grew dark the dispatches ceased coming. The President would walk from the White House to the War Department and anxiously inquire for Hooker. The night was dark and stormy—about as mean a night as was ever experienced in Washington. About seven o'clock the President ceased his visits to the War Department.

An hour afterward a despatch of an indefinite character was received, and Mr. Stanton hurried with it to the White House. He found Mr. Lincoln walking the room, and, as he entered, the agonizing appearance of the President so terrified the Secretary that it was with difficulty he could speak. Mr. Lincoln talked to him like a wild man, and seizing the dispatch from his hand, read it, and simply remarked: "Stanton there is no hope yet!" At Mr. Stanton's solicitation, the President accompanied him to the War Department where they agreed to spend the time together until something definite was heard from Hooker. For four hours, the longest and most wearisome of his life, said Mr. Stanton, they waited before the dispatch announcing the retreat of Hooker was received. When Mr. Lincoln had read it, he threw up his hands and exclaimed: "My God! Stanton our cause is lost. We are ruined! We are ruined! And such a fearful loss of life. My God! this is more than I can endure." He stood trembling like a leaf, the perspiration rolling from his brow. He put on his hat and coat, and began pacing the floor. For five minutes he was silent, and then turning to Stanton he said: "If I am not about to-morrow morning, don't feel alarmed. Defeated again, and so many killed! What will the people say?" As he made the remark he went to open the door to go out. His actions alarmed Mr. Stanton, and he stopped him, and entreated him to return, that they might talk and act like men. With difficulty he had him return, and Mr. Stanton began to try to cheer him. He finally got him to assent to retire to bed, and leave for the army the next morning—which he did. Lincoln afterwards told Mr. Stanton that when he told him about not being alarmed if he was not about the next morning, he had fully made up his mind to go to the Potomac and drown himself. Mr. Stanton says he thought at the time the President contemplated suicide, and never felt so frightened during his lifetime.

"G. W."—G. Washington was a great man. He came from poor but honest parents. He cut down a cherry tree, and when his father, who was fond of cherries, chased him into the barn to lick him, he cried, "Give me Liberty or give me Death." To which his father nobly replied, "I would rather you told ten thousand lies, than cut down one cherry tree." In early life G. Washington never played truant and never chewed tobacco, nor did he ever write for the New York Ledger.

THE temperance society in Trackville, Schuylkill county, is debating whether to admit a gentle but ingenious youth who signed the following pledge: "I solemnly promise to abstain from the use of all intoxicating beverages otherwise than as a drink, and also from profanity, unless prescribed by a physician at least four times a day, excepting cider." His chances, we think, are poor.

THE CENSUS.—The census man will shortly be about in Pottsville asking his knotty and impertinent questions. Everybody should therefore be prepared with correct and ready answers, so as not to keep him waiting. The following are some of the main questions which he may probably ask:

How old are you?

Were you ever elected to office?—if so, how much did it cost you, and what was your majority?

Are you married?—if so, how do you like it?

Have you any children, and how many measles have they had?

Do you use corn in a solid or liquid state?

What is your opinion of lager beer? How many glasses can you drink, and with what effect?

Were your father and mother both white men?

What is your opinion of our Borough Council?

Did they all go home sober from the supper on Wednesday morning?

Do you observe the XVth commandment?

Can you stand on your head, and how long?

Have you any children married?—if so, how much?

Did you ever fish for frogs, and with what success?

If half an acre of ground will yield one hundred bushels of rutabagas, how many glasses of lager will make a man draw a bee line?

If your family eat a ham in three days, how long will it take them to devour a hammer?

Lend me five dollars.

There are a number of other questions which we have not the space to mention, but the above are the most intricate, and if our readers are prepared to answer them when the proper time arrives, no difficulty will be experienced in answering the others.

How to be Agreeable in a Printing Office.

Reader, if you want to make yourself very agreeable in a printing office, step into the sanctum first.

If the editor is writing or proof-reading, take a seat along side of him, and tell him how you started in business, about your dog, your horse, your wife and baby, or, if you can remember, your boyhood sports. Should the editor manifest signs of being bored by your story stick to it and go through with it. Should one of the compositors or "devil," step up and ask for "copy," whether the proof is read or if done you should by all means ask what the article is about and insist on seeing. Of course the editor will read the article for you and profit by your opinion as to its fitness to go into the columns of the paper. After thus entertaining the editor, step into the composing room and ask each one of the hands as many questions as to the cases, letters, &c., as may be agreeable to yourself. Then begin to whistle. All printers are fond of whistling. Give them at least three or four jigs. Then sing "Milwaukie," and "Ham-Fat-Man." Before leaving the office you should take hold of the handpress, give it a pull and let it fly back, just to see how it works. Don't forget to squirt tobacco juice on the 'devil's' feet, or to examine everything in the shape of matter on the stone, even if you knock some of it into "pi;" that will only put the patience of the printers to a fair test. On leaving the office be sure to promise another visit at an early day, and leave the door open if it's cold, and our word for it you will be held in "fond remembrance" for a long time.

IN Virginia, where the law fixes the marriage fee at $1, there is a reminiscence of a couple who, many years ago, called on a parson and requested him to marry them.

"Where is my fee?" said the functionary.

The parties who were to unite their fortunes did so at once and found the joint amount to be twenty seven cents.

"I can't marry you for that sum," said the irate old gentleman.

"A little bit of service will go a long way," suggested the male applicant.

"Ah no," said the parson, "you don't pay for the size of the bill, but for the good you hope it will do you."

The lass, intent on marriage, began to weep, but the parson was inexorable, and the couple turned sadly to depart. Just then a happy thought seemed to strike the forlorn maiden, and she turned and cried through her tears: "Please, sir, if you can't marry us full up, won't you marry us twenty seven cents worth—we can come for the rest some other time?"

This was too much for the parson. He married them "full up," and they went on their way rejoicing.

NOT long ago a woman entered the probate office with four little "hopefuls," and with a countenance that would do justice to hard days, commenced her truly affecting appeal: "Please your honor, my husband died detested, and against his will left four little infidel children and appointed me executioner, and I pray your honor will allow me to execute."

Our Indian Policy.

Advices from the Indian country are such as to justify fears of a general war. Some 20.000 Sioux, it is reported, are already on the war path and are to be joined by more northern tribes. The reason given for the dissatisfaction of the Indians is, that they have failed to receive their annuities, and we have no doubt but that it is a correct one. For many years the Agents deputized to deliver to these people their annual installments have shamefully robbed them, and by the distribution of whiskey have done much to degrade and demoralize them. It is useless to attempt to conciliate these wandering tribes as long as Agents are allowed to swindle them. More honesty is imperatively demanded. It is the root of all the trouble and Quaker Commissioners will prove of no avail, whilst fair words are offset by foul deeds. How much Sheridan's massacre of women and children has had to do with the general dissatisfaction it is impossible to say. That it has had an influence we have no doubt. It is but a poor excuse to offer, that the Indians are guilty of atrocities. We are presumed to be superior to them in civilization, and outrages inflicted by us degrade us without justifying us in them.

Cameron's Courtesy.

The New York World having commented severely upon Senator Cameron's publication of a breakfast table talk with Mr. Jefferson Davis, which occurred before the war, and which tends to show the Honorable Senator's high abilities as a prophet, the Day retorts sharply and draws a parallel between the ingratitude of Mr. Davis and that of Mr. Cameron. Now we are not aware of any rule of logic which makes a right out of two wrongs. The Day devotes itself to the refutation of an argument which was never advanced. The World was not discussing Mr. Davis, but Mr. Cameron, and we fail to see how the publication of a private conversation which was held whilst Mr. Cameron was the guest of Mr. Davis, justifies him because Mr. Davis was guilty of ingratitude to the Government which gave him his early military education. The point was, whether it was a proper thing to give to the public a private talk, for the purpose of making political capital, and whether the amenities of social life are only to be regarded by those who are not "loil" and United States Senators to boot.

Hon. William Montgomery.

This prominent Pennsylvania democrat died at his residence, near Washington, Pa., on Thursday last. Mr. Montgomery was born at Canton, Bradford county, April 11, 1819, and was educated at Washington college. He graduated in 1839, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1842. In a few years he won distinction in his profession, and also became a recognized leader in the democratic party. In 1856 he was elected to Congress, where he served two terms. During his congressional career his name became conspicuous in connection with the so-called Crittenden Montgomery amendment, which was intended as a measure of pacification to the slavery excitement. The latter years of his life were clouded by a painful family misfortune. It will be remembered that he figured in the Dinsmore murder trial as counsel for his own son, who was indicted for connection with the crime.

Howard.

"The investigation of Gen. O. O. Howard's official conduct has thus far failed to develop a single fact to his official dishonor."—Exchange.

Ah ha! Well that is the way Republicans look at these things. The truth is that there does not seem to be any such thing as "official dishonor" now-a-days. The investigation has brought to light, that Gen. Howard used Government money for private purposes and took in exchange therefor worthless Church bonds, which we presume, as things go, is quite right and proper. Gen. Howard having been one of the Radical saints must needs be upheld, but suppose he had been a Democrat and done this. How would things be then? Eh?

Election Contest in Phila. Decided.

PHILADELPHIA, May 3.

Judge Allison, of the Court of Common Pleas, rendered his decision this morning in the contest for the District Attorneyship. The Court decides that Shepherd, democrat, was elected by a majority of thirteen over Charles Gibbons, the Republican candidate at the election in 1868.

This has been a curious case. First, Shepherd entered on the duties of the office by a certificate of election; then a contest ensued, when the Supreme Court decided that Gibbons was elected, by ruling out the vote of a certain division on account of fraudulent votes; and now the Common Pleas decides after a recount and almost interminable arguments that Shepherd was elected.

THE House of Representatives, in Committee of the Whole, has raised the duty on hair-pins 50 per cent. ad valorem. The honorable members have struck a brilliant lead. May they follow on through chignons, switches, braids, rats and mice, shoo-flies, plaits, paint, powder, wads, and all the paraphernalia of feminine finery which from the days of Isaiah (chap. 3, v. 18) have been used in the subjection of man.—Press.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas now comprising a Court of Quarter Sessions of the peace, in and for the county of Columbia.

The Grand Inquest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, inquiring for the body of the Court of Columbia county, respectfully represent that we have pursuant to our required duty, calmly and deliberately investigated all bills of Indictment presented for our consideration at this term, and have passed upon them accordingly, that we have examined the public buildings and find them in good condition, excepting the jail yard wall and the steps leading therein, which we recommend repaired. All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN A. FUNSTON,
Foreman.

THE INCOME TAX SWINDLE.—The United States Senate has voted to retain the income tax in the assessment for internal revenue for the current year. This is the worst specimen of legislation that has characterized Congress the present session. It is retrograde legislation in its most wretched shape. It stains the journal of the Senate with an act that is in wanton disregard of the wishes of the people, and a deliberate violation of justice toward all honest tax-payers.—N. Y. Herald.

—An Irishman having jumped into the water to save a man from drowning, upon receiving a six-pence from the person as a reward for his service, looked first at the sixpence then at him, and at last exclaimed, "Be jabers, I am over-paid for the job!"

County Fair.

The Executive Committee have called a meeting of the members of the Agricultural Society for the purpose of selecting officers to serve during the ensuing year. We have repeatedly urged that this meeting be held at a time when it would be convenient for a large attendance from the country. It appears that the regulations of the society prevent its being held at the time we suggested, therefore we must do the next best thing which is to secure as large an attendance as possible. These annual exhibitions are not intended to be mere gala days. If properly conducted and supported by the people they can be made of real and lasting benefit to the county. Let our farmers and mechanics commence now, to make preparation for the fall exhibition. Till and plant and cultivate with a view to excelling in your department. What is done, endeavor to do in the best possible manner. Let each strive to this end and whether you succeed or not you will at the end of the season have made immense strides which will enable you to commence the next year far in advance of where you now are. When you meet in the fall with men from different sections of the county you can compare notes with each other, exhibit your crops, and arrive at the best conclusion. We hold the opinion that Columbia county can be made as rich in agricultural wealth as any section of the State. To do this our farmers must be live, earnest men, not squandering recklessly upon their soil, but judiciously advancing all the while. Whatever you raise either of grain or stock let it be of the best quality or breed. If unable alone to do this, join with your neighbors and by combined effort you can succeed. We hope there will be such an attendance at the meeting on the 21st of the present month as will indicate that our people are going to take an unusual interest in in the matter. In this object we can certainly unite without political bias. Our neighboring paper will join us in the effort to do good in this direction. Let us go to work.—Republican.

The State National Guard.

We give below an official announcement of the staff of Gen. Osborne. We are pleased to learn that the General is determined to revive the militia of this division, composed of the counties of Luzerne, Wyoming and Columbia, and to make it a credit to the State. He has called to his assistance officers who have all seen active service, and who will take pride in making the movement a success. We hope, now that the proper initiatory steps have been taken, that companies will be speedily formed through Luzerne—we ought to have almost a regiment in this city.

HEADQUARTES 9TH DIVISION NATIONAL GUARD OF PENNSYLVANIA,
Wilkes-Barre, April 29 1870.

Communication.

BERWICK PA, May 2d 1870.—Our townsman E. J. Bowman has frequently lectured in our midst free of charge. His lectures have invariably evinced careful preparation, and have been listened to by appreciative audiences. It is proposed that his farewell address be a benefit; and accordingly he will lecture in our Odd Fellows' Hall the forthcoming Tuesday night, the 10th inst. His subject will be of general interest. "Our Country, its Past and Future" void of political bias. As the speaker is well known, doubtless there will be a generous turn-out of our people to give substantial appreciation for past services. Patriotic airs will be sung upon the occasion by our best singing talent. Tickets of admission 35 cents can be procured at Jackson & Bowman's store, also at the Bank, and at the door of the Hall on the night of the lecture. Come one, come all.

Committee, of Arrangements, C. G. Jackson, S. C. Jayne, Jno. Evans, C. R. Woodin, George Thompson, W. P. Hughes.

Congress.

THURSDAY, April 28.—In the Senate, yesterday, a bill was reported, among others, to organize the Territory of Oklahoma, and to consolidate the Indian tribes under a territorial form of government. The bill for enforcing the Fifteenth Amendment was made a special order next after the Franking bill.

In the House, the Tariff debate again occupied the greater part of the morning, and an evening session, the various sections relating to iron being still under consideration. During the debate an announcement of the Richmond calamity was made, and a motion made to adjourn, which, after deliberation, was withdrawn.

FRIDAY, April 29.—In the Senate, among the bills introduced yesterday, was one to incorporate a National Academy of Letters and Arts; also one removing disabilities under the fourteenth amendment; also one revising the coinage laws. The report of the committee in the Florida contested-election case, in favor of Mr. Gilbert, was adopted.

In the House, the Election Committee made a report in the Third Louisiana Congressional district election case. The report was adopted and is in favor of C. B. Darrall. The bill establishing a Department of Justice passed, as did also a joint resolution directing the purchase of a portrait of the late Major General Thomas, to be placed in the Capitol.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff bill, and again discussed the iron items.

SATURDAY, April 30.—In the Senate, the House bill providing for a portrait of the late Gen. Thomas, passed the day before, was, after some debate, referred to the Library Committee. A number of reports were received, and and some new bills introduced, among the latter, one by Mr. Wilson, providing a new mode for the selection of military and naval cadets.

In the House the most important event of the day was a long discussion on the question of granting public lands to aid in the construction of railways. The debate occurred on the Senate bill granting lands to the road from Portland to Astoria and McMinnville, in Oregon. It was finally passed by a vote of 97 to 69.

MONDAY, May 2.—The Senate was not in session on Saturday.

In the House a motion was agreed to that when the House adjourn Thursday it be until Monday, May 9. A large amount of business was taken from the Speaker's table and disposed of.

TUESDAY, May 3.—In the Senate, a resolution was adopted relative to so amending the patent laws as to give the Government the free use of every patent hereafter issued and disposed of, among them one to increase the number of United States Supreme and Circuit Court judges.

In the House, a bill was passed to allow Mrs. Lincoln a pension of $3,000 a year. A resolution was adopted making May 30 a public holiday forever for the decoration of soldiers' graves. At 1½ P. M. the House went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff bill, and discussed the iron section.

WEDNESDAY, May 4.—In the Senate, yesterday, various reports of minor interest were received and several bills introduced. Among the latter was one to furnish medals to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania volunteers.

In the House the morning hour was mainly devoted to a discussion of Mr. Jenckes' bill for the reorganization of the civil service. A concurrent resolution was adopted for a final adjournment on the 4th of July. Considerable progress was made with the Tariff bill, all the sections relating to iron being disposed of and also several relating to steel.

Latest News.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 27.—About 2 o'clock this morning Police Officer Max arrested a man for behaving disorderly in Third-street, above Montgomery avenue. He was attacked by another man, who attempted to rescue the prisoner, when Officer Max used his revolver with fatal effect, killing both men, whose names were Hugh Murtagh and James Welsh. The officer was severely beaten before he fired. His assailants were engaged in a fight together when he interfered, and they both joined in the assault upon him. It is said the deceased were only indulging in a sham fight, their object being to find an opportunity to beat Officer Max.

POTTSVILLE, May 2.—To-day being the first anniversary of the Miners' and Workingmens' Benevolent Association, an organization formed for the purpose of establishing a uniform basis for wages throughout the coal region, it was generally observed by the miners in this county. The principal feature of the day was the parade of the different branches of the organization from St. Clair to Port Carbon, thence to Palo Alto, thence to Pottsville, and back to St. Clair, where a large mass meeting was held. While the procession was forming a salute was fired, during which a cannon exploded, instantly killing a lad named Theodore Johns, and severly injuring David Williams.

The parade was thirty minutes passing one point, and contained over four thousand persons, who conducted themselves well with one exception. While passing the office of the Miners' Journal, groans were given by one delegation. After reaching St. Clair, the procession was dismissed for one hour, after which a mass meeting was held in the open air, on Parvin's hill. The speakers urged the men to hold out to the end for the old basis, and accept no compromise from the operators. The general impression, however, is that the miners will not hold out much longer, but will go to work at reduced wages inside of two weeks.

HARRISBURG, May 2.—In accordance with law the Hon. W. W. Irwin today assumed charge of the state treasury of Pennsylvania. His bond, under the new law, is $500,000 and his bondsmen are J. C. Bomberger, of Harrisburg; George K. Anderson, of Titusville; W. Vankirk, and S. B. McElroy, of Pittsburg; William Kennedy, of New Brighton; Ephraim Smith, Benjamin Wild, A. P. Lacock, John Mc Donald, and John F. Dravo, of Beaver. Each of these gentlemen is bound in the sum of $50,000.

Pennsylvania State Sunday School Convention.

The annual Convention, for the year 1870, will be held at Harrisburg, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 14, 15 and 16. George H. Stuart, Esq., is expected to preside. Each Sunday School in the State is invited to send two or more delegates. Pastors of Churches, Superintendents of Sunday Schools, and prominent Sunday School workers from all parts of the State are invited to attend and participate.

Our Sunday School brethren from other States are also cordially welcomed. It is requested that the names of those who expect to attend shall be sent to Rev. Thos. H. Robinson, or John M. Sayford, Secretary, on or before the first day of June, as it WILL BE NECESSARY for those who would avail themselves of a reduction of fare on the railroads, to procure excursion tickets before leaving their homes for Harrisburg. The committee of arrangements will secure orders for tickets for all who notify them in time to do so and forward them.

Places of entertainment will be provided for all who give due notice of their coming.

T. H. ROBINSON,
J. M. SAYFORD, Sec. Chairman.

Too Fast.

A RADICAL WARNING.

We would respectfully suggest to the leaders of the Republican party that they are crowding the "colored person" a little too fast for their own good and for his good. Negro suffrage is a bitter pill for at least one-half of the men who have hitherto voted the Republican ticket. Hence time should have been given them before another and a worse dose was exhibited. This crowding of the negroes into office while there are white men quite as deserving and as well qualified won't win in the long run. It will break the Republican party down. It will reduce the negro to a worse condition than he occupied in a state of slavery, if that is possible. It will sooner or later lead to his extermination. Politicians and fanatical idiots who cannot read the signs of the times may elevate the negro to the United States Senate and to the platform of Conventions, but they can't find endorsement at the polls for such disgusting conduct, and they will find it out when too late. It is probable that both parties will strive for the negro vote. We predict that this foolish policy of elevating negroes to office and of catering to them for their votes will result in the formation of what will be termed "the White Man's Party," which will be strong enough to carry the next Presidential election, if wisdom in the selection of candidates is observed, and there is not too much rebel democracy mixed up with it. Such a movement is imminent, and if made will break up the Republican party, which would be a deplorable event for the country. Let us secure the negro in his right to the ballot, but for the salvation of our party—for the welfare of our country—for the good of the negro—let us dissuade him from seeking or accepting office.—Seymour (Ind.) Times—Radical.

Shaking and Burning.

It is not necessary to journey from the tropics to Alaska in order to experience the extremes of heat and cold. Thousands undergo all the inconveniences of this thermometrical change every day, or every other day, as the case may be, without the trouble of moving over the threshold. A word with these involuntary shakers. What are they doing to expedite their return to a medium temperature?—to break the chills and banish the fever? Are they dosing themselves with quinine, thereby imperilling the soundness of their bones and impairing the vigor of their brains and nervous system? Some of them are, no doubt, but not the majority of them, it is believed. The value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a harmless and certain specific for fever and ague is understood and appreciated in all parts of the country where intermittents prevail. The residents of such localities begin to take it early in the spring as a protection against the miasma by which they are surrounded; not all of them, perhaps, for a blind adherence to error is the specialty of some people, but the greater number.

If there is any fixed fact in therapeutics, it is this: that the Bitters are a far better safeguard against all the varieties of periodic maladies produced by unwholesome exhalations than any drug or compound in the materia medica of the profession. This assertion is made with all due respect to the faculty, but being an important truth, and one that nearly concerns the health of large settlements in various parts of the country, and indeed of the public at large, it is made fearlessly. Founded on ample and unimpeachable testimony, it defies disproval.

To break up chills and fevers, as well as to prevent them, there is nothing so reliable as this wholesome vegetable restorative.

THE TREASURER.

8th. The Treasurer shall receive all moneys of the Association and deposit the same in such Bank or Banks, designated by the Board of Trustees. After paying the current expenses the balance shall be securely invested as the Board of Trustees may direct. He shall make all investments pursuant to instructions of the Board of Trustees.

It shall further be the duty of the Treasurer to take charge of all properties of the Association, and to collect all dividends, interest, rentals, &c., that may accrue, from such investment, and place the same to the credit of the Association. He shall also give such Bonds as the Trustees may from time to time require.

9th. All powers and duties, not herein delegated to particular officers, shall be exercised and discharged by the President during the recess of the Board of Trustees.

10th. All persons between the ages of twenty and fifty years, inclusive, may be admitted by making proper application according to the following form:

Columbia County Co-operative Relief Association Espy, Pa.:

The undersigned desires to become a member of the above Association and subscribes to the following regulations:

1st. To pay five dollars into the Treasury at the time of making this application, and one dollar on or before the 1st day of January of each year thereafter and five dollars and ten cents within thirty days after the death of a member, due notice having been given by the Secretary, so long as the Association numbers one thousand or less; after reaching one thousand, the payments at the death of a member shall be proportionately less so that no policy holder shall receive more than five thousand dollars. To keep the Secretary informed of his or her place of residence, and in case of absence from or change in his or her residence to appoint some one to act as his or her agent to pay dues.

Failing to observe any of the above rules I hereby agree to forfeit all claims against and all moneys previously paid to this Association.

Inclosed please find five dollars as my Membership Fee.

The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Friday, May 6, 1870.

THE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE.—This fine ilding is progressing rapidly towards mpletion and will prove an ornament the town. It is far enough advanced give an idea of its appearance when ished, and the work thus far has been good quality.

TROUT.—We regret to learn that ese most delicious fish are very scarce is season. The late freshet destroyed any of them by choking up their unts with the sand brought down by e water, from the mountains.

NOMINATIONS.—We will be called on this fall to nominate candidates Congress, Members of Assembly, eriff, Associate Judge, Commission, Jury Commissioner, District Attor y, and Auditor. There are no State icers to be elected.

A FLORAL CURIOSITY.—There is to seen in Miss Webb's Book Store, in s place, a cactus which has no less n eighty buds! This wealth of floral auty looks oddly enough upon such uninviting looking plant as the cac with its stiff, ungainly stems. It is lly a curiosity.

For white goods, Linens, towels, or pkins go to M. P. Lutz's.

WHEAT.—We learn that in some ts of the county the wheat has been atly injured by the fly; in some pla to such an extent as to insure the l failure of the crop. This is bad eed and we can only hope it may confined to the localities where it ady exists.

HE R. R. up Fishingcreek is said to be pro sing finely. Indomitable perseverence is price of all great projects, and the friends of road should bear this maximum in mind."— ublican.

We presume the intention of the ve highly philosophical reflection that it should be borne greatly in nd, and would suggest maximumly more proper, and fully as correct.

BENTON.—Improvement is rife in the n of Benton this year. We learn numerous dwellings in process of tion and also a fine Church in the er part of the Main Street. John J. Henry is rebuilding his Store, de yed by fire some time since, and a eral spirit of progress seems to ani e the inhabitants.

ANDIDATES.—Our town has been e more than usually active this k by the presence of a large number andidates for the Democratic nomi on to the various county offices. principal contest will be for the e of Sheriff, for which we have d a dozen or more names men d.

HE WEATHER.—Spring may be now y said to have begun, and the buds light dresses, the birds and "loves hats" increase daily. Straw hats no longer things to be treated with mpt and some few of the more ad turous have donned spring suits. past winter has hardly been a sat tory one, and settled weather is e than usually pleasant.

METHING NEW FOR LADIES.—A assortment of patterns, latest styles, sacques, dresses, over skirts ren's patterns, boys' suits from $3 to ady made, Italian and Chinese cloth, alpacca &c., all of which e sold at very low figures, at Mrs. A Barkley's. Dress making ded to promptly and at reasonable

AGES.—Mr. W. F. Piatt proprietor e Benton Hotel, now runs a Stage d from Bloom three times a week, ing on alternate days with the e from Cambra. By this means, s living on the line of the route een Bloom and Forks have daily munication with Bloom. We un and that Mr. Piatt has offered to the mail, free of expense to the rnment, but thus far the offer has een excepted.

E EXCHANGE.—We do most car y hope that the ruins of the Ex e Hotel may not long remain to he souls of our townsmen. There a place in town so fitted in every or the site of a fine Hotel, and the sing travel demands the erection e. The property is yearly grow value and would amply justify uilding of a first-class establish . Capitalists have now a chance profitable investment.

ROVEMENT.—The new awning in of Brower's building is completed a great protection to the fine dis f goods in M. P. Lutz's windows. erferes somewhat with the appear f the handsome iron front, but its ness will compensate for its want uty. The two black boxes stuck posts in front of the Republican do not add greatly to the beauty f, however.

PNESS.—The absence of rain has d in such a dusty state of the hat the sprinkler has been brought e and the comfort of all dwellers ssers by on Main Street greatly sed thereby. If we possessed works the streets could be kept condition with much less trouble pense. We hope at no very dis y to be able to announce the sup of this greatest of Bloomsburg's

ER DONE.—Everybody almost, world, gets done sometime or but an editor never. He is more ously bored and worried and than all other men put together. ght to make a fortune in less than e, but he don't. From the time in the morning until he goes to night, he is beset by somebody s something on hand that ought in," and when he sleeps, "the is hovering around his pillow seless demands for copy. There st for him this side of the grave, ertain.

BELLIGERENTS.—The Catawissa Co., has suddenly conceived the building a side track near Cata It happens to be just in the way Danville, Hazleton & Wilkes R. R. track. On Tuesday last, a rce of the latter company was d to lay the rails, and, by a re ble coincidence, a few hundred s of the Catawissa R. R. Co. ngaged during the day and night ding their switch. No collision d, but from the quantity of re s, &c., in the crowd it is inferred ey feared an attack from copper panthers, or other wild animals ich the mountain is said to AFFAIR.—An accident occurred sday of last week at Menden aw mill in Pine township, which d in the death of Joseph M. Yorks, g man employed at the mill. rks, who was about twenty-five f age, was engaged in adjusting part of the machinery beneath riage, when a log which was being in position, missed the head f the carriage and struck him head near the ear. The skull was ctured nor was any wound dis except a slight flesh cut. He d in great pain until Friday, out of his mind most of the time, eath put an end to his sufferings. rks was a son of Asa Yorks and d favorably known in the com y. The funeral was very largely d.

A FALL.—The Fishingcreek has fallen with great rapidity during the past week and the water is now quite low for this season.

AMONG the "arrivals" this week are C. T. Smith and wife, from Towanda, Pa., Joseph Eves and wife, from Muncy, Pa., John Brown and family from Bedford county, Pa., Yetman Eves from Middletown, Pa., J. C. Burns, from Selin's Grove, Pa.—North Carolinian.

ENLARGING HIS BORDERS.—Our friend of the Berwick Gazette has been so successful as a journalist, that he has bought the Hazleton Sentinel and will edit it in addition to the Gazette. He informs us that the Sentinel will be neutral in politics under his management. It has heretofore been Republican. Mr. Sanders will move his family to Hazleton.

MUSICAL.—We have received Howe's Musical Monthly for May, and find it, if anything, superior to the previous number in the variety and excellence of its selections. Lovers of music will find in this magazine, for the small sum of $3, as much and as good music as would cost at the stores ten times that sum. It is really a valuable addition to either vocal or instrumental collections.

NEW STORE.—W. H. Brown has opened a Grocery and Provision Store in Shive's Block, and intends to do business in a liberal manner, keeping the best goods and asking only fair prices for them. He should be encouraged. The more competition the better the out-look for cheap purchases.

MEETING OF THE BAR.—On Wednesday evening last, the members of the Columbia County Bar met in the Court House, and resolved to form an Association. Messrs. Robison, Jackson and Little were appointed a Committee to prepare by-laws, &c. Another meeting will be held Friday evening, June 3rd. We learn that about $400 has been accumulated for the purchase of books.

TROUBLE.—On Monday night last, some three quarters of a mile of the track of the Danville, Hazleton & Wilkesbarre Railroad near Catawissa was torn up and the rails, sleepers, joints &c, thrown into the river. Much opposition exists in the vicinity against the new road. The persons engaged in removing the track are not known. From what we have been able to learn, the strong feeling against the road arises from a disposition on the part of the officers to lay their track on the most level ground, even using the public roads when suiting their convenience.

GOOD WORK.—We paid a visit a few days since to the well known Carriage Manufactory of M. C. Sloan & Bro., on Market Street and were delighted with the fine specimens of their handiwork. No establishment in the country turns out handsomer or better finished work than the Messrs Sloan's. Their material is of the best, their workmen thoroughly skilled and their good taste beyond cavil. The reputation which they have established is fully justified by the excellence of their work, and they seem determined to deserve the approval of the public, as the stock which they now have on hand will certainly prove.

OCCASIONALLY we get letters from subscribers who seem to be ignorant of certain decisions in regard to newspapers. 1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay. 2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made and collect the whole amount whether it is taken from the office or not. 3. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

REPUBLICAN LOCALS.—For the benefit of those of our readers who do not read the Republican we give below specimens of the kind of local items furnished by that valuable journal.

This month is called May.........Grass grows at this time of year.........Birds are building.........Buds are appearing ....Bradley was not elected Secretary of the Town Council.........He didn't care for it!.........Greens are eatable ....Shad are about.........This is a great country.........See our black bulletin boards (and weep.).........Cats catch mice.........Shoo fly.........Acts of Incorporation of the town of Bloom for sale thirty cents per copy.........The Town Council didn't buy them all......... Wretched trash this is.........Just what we think.........Buy the Republican and you will find lots just like it.

OUR neighbors at Catawissa had a little excitement on last Saturday, in the matter of Roaring creek township vs. The Danville, Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre R. R.—Republican.

We would suggest to the subscribers of the Republican in Catawissa, Roaring Creek and Franklin townships that they raise a subscription to buy our neighbor a County map, in order to show that the above named railroad does not run through, nor touch Roaring Creek township, and that the fight is altogether in Franklin. He concludes:

"The people of Roaringcreek township certainly should have a road opened by some means other than that of being put to the expense themselves, of cutting through the rock."

We would simply ask the Republicans of the Townships interested if they are not proud of their County paper, after such an exhibition of ignorance?

MILITARY REVIVAL.—During the war our people had a surfeit of military matters, and everything of that nature, especially when connected with the militia, was much slighted at the close of the war. We are glad, however, to see the military ardor of our people reviving, and, all over the State, fresh military organizations are starting up. We believe this is right and commendable. With a well organized militia, the necessity for a large standing army is obviated, and we have constantly a corps of trained men who can be called out in an emergency to repel foreign invasion or suppress domestic insurrection.

Years ago Columbia County was noted for its fine military organizations, and such leading spirits as Col. Kline, Col. Tate, Capt. Seeley, and others won unfading laurels for their military devotion. We hope to see several companies formed in our County. The law encourages the formation of such companies more than formerly. Why should not Bloomsburg, by the way, have a battery of four guns?

BUY your black Alpacas of M. P. Lutz.

THE NEWSPAPERS.—A child beginning to read becomes delighted with newspapers because he reads names which are very familiar, and he will progress accordingly. A newspaper in one year is worth a quarter's schooling to a child and every father must consider that substantial information is connected with this advancement. The mother of a family being one of the heads and having more immediate charge of the children should herself be instructed. A mind occupied becomes fortified against the ills of life, and is braced for any emergency. Children amused by reading or study are of course considerate and more easily governed. How many thoughtless young men have spent their earnings in a tavern or grog shop, who ought to have been reading? How many parents who never spent twenty dollars for books for their families would gladly have given thousands to reclaim a son or daughter who had ignorantly or thoughtlessly fallen into temptation.—Exchange.

M. P. LUTZ has just received another bale of Appleton "A" Sheeting which he will sell by the piece for 15 cts per yard.

NEW SYSTEM OF BILLIARDS.—Billiard players, of which this city has an extensive assortment of every grade, will be interested in the following item, which announces the introduction of a new system of billiards. The game differs from that now in vogue, and among other things will abolish the obnoxious feature known as "scratching." It is described thus:

"Four balls are to be used as at present, three object, and one playing ball; the object balls are to be colored light red, deep red, and blue, respectively. The game must be caroms only, and played as at present, with this other difference. No carom to count unless the playing ball touch a cushion, either before or after contact with the first object ball, but in making follow, draw, masse, or kiss-from cushion shots, this rule will not be observed."

The merits of the system are soon to be tested.—Scranton Republican.

A CHAPTER OF INCIDENTS—The Danville, Hazleton & Wilkes-Barre R. R. Co. it would seem, have obtained from the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, an injunction against the Catawissa R. R. Co. to restrain them from preventing the said Danville, Hazleton & Wilkes-Barre R. R. Co. crossing their track near Catawissa. Saturday, the 7th inst., has been fixed for the hearing of the case at Philadelphia. On last Tuesday, as a counter movement, the Catawissa R. R. Co. obtained from our court a preliminary injunction to restrain the Danville, Hazleton & Wilkes-Barre R. R. Co. from crossing their road until after the hearing at Philadelphia.

The latter company deemed it necessary on Tuesday last to serve a copy of their injunction on George Webb, Superintendent of the Catawissa R. R., who was known to be in town. Among others our amiable constable, Mr. Woodward, was retained for this service, and a couple of enterprising gentlemen from Danville. Diligent search was at once made, and many of our leading men "interviewed." Our genial friend Gulick insisted to us that "it was necessary for him to see Webb—that he had a dispatch from Forester, the agent at Danville, &c." Of course we could give him no information. During all this time Mr. Webb was snugly ensconced in Mr. Clark's back office leisurely transacting his business with his attorneys.

About dusk a couple of buggies were driven in front of Mr. Clark's office, and of course Mr. Webb was about to leave. A frantic rush was made to Risewick's livery stable, and a demand made for his fastest horse, but George thought "he had none in." Sheriff Millard, armed with the injunction against the D. H. & W. R. R. Co., jumped into one buggy, and started after S. P. Kase to serve it upon him. A couple of our citizens got into the other buggy, and started off, but it was believed that soon one of them would be dropped and Mr. Webb would take his place, and that buggy was followed. It was driven to the lower end of town, then stopped at a private residence on Third street, then was driven to Port Noble, then to Espy, then to Light Street, and then to Orangeville, but the chase was given up near Light Street. In the meantime Mr. Clark had a buggy waiting in the alley back of Mr. Grotz's residence, and after dark Mr. Webb got into it through Mr. Grotz's stable, and was rapidly driven to the railroad cut near Rupert, where an engine, without noise or headlight, met him and bore him safely from the county. In making these combinations the telegraph lines were in constant use, and three trains on the Catawissa Railroad were laid over to give Webb's engine full swing.

We have only to add that the Sheriff failed to find Mr. Kase at Catawissa, but succeeded in serving the writ on him the same evening.

LOCAL NOTICES.

THE CORNER STONE of the New Columbia church will be laid on Saturday, May 14th, services to commence at 11 a. m. Several speakers are expected to be present. n18 2t *

THE annual meeting of the Columbia County Agricultural Society, for the election of officers for the ensuing year, will be held in the Court House in Bloomsburg, on Saturday the 21st day of May, 1870, at 2 o'clock P. M.

AN unhealthy man cannot at the ordinary rates get an insurance on his life in a properly managed Company. Therefore while in health go to J. B. Robison and take out a policy for five or ten thousand dollars in the Globe Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. It will pay. *

THE Danville Plow made by Huhn & Son, seems to supply the wants of the wants of the farmers. It is the only plow that can be relied upon—always kept on hand together with all the castings, also corn plows, corn cultivators, cultivator teeth, and a great stock of farmers tools at reduced prices.

n18-4t* RUNYAN & WARDIN.

DR. PIERCE'S Alterative Extract, or Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest bronchial tonic and blood purifier ever discovered. It cures consumption in its early stages, and all severe and lingering coughs. Sold by druggists, or send three and a quarter dollars to R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., and get three bottles free of express charges. *

BY an endowment insurance on your life, you may secure the advantages of Life Insurance to your family in case of early death, or realize the advantages of a Saving Fund bank should you live to the specified age. The Globe, issues such policies. J. B. Robison of Bloomsburg, is the agent and will cheerfully furnish information on the subject of life insurance. *

SAVING FUND institutions are great blessings for the industrious man of small means, but considering the uncertainty of life, a man dependent on a small income does greater justice by his family and takes a better course for securing those dependent upon him from want by investing in a good, well managed, Insurance Company, such as The GLOBE MUTUAL LIFE Insurance Company of NEW YORK. *

IF you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may be sure you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive, or less understood by physicians. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," and Catarrhal Headache, which he sends to any address on receipt of sixty cents. Sold by most druggists everywhere. *

PULMONARY CONSUMPTION is robbed of its terrors. The Phœnix Pectoral has cured many cases and has given happy relief in many more. n16-4t

SHARPLESS & HARMAN have for sale the best corn planters in use. Also the Montrose Iron Beam Plows, Plow-handles, bolts, &c. * 2t.

REMOVAL.—J. N. Oberender has moved his Tailoring establishment to the rooms over Jacobs' Confectionery store on Main Street, opposite David Lowenberg's, where he is now ready to attend to the needs of all customers. n17-5t *

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE

ESTATE OF ISABELLA MASON, DEC'D.

Letters of administration on the estate of Isabella Mason late of Fall Brook, in Tioga county, deceased, have been granted by the Register of said county to Charles W. Miller of Bloom township, Columbia county. DAVID LOWENBERG, Bloomsburg, March 8, 1870. Treasurer.

HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest Principles of common sense teach this, and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea, and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act; the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded ideas of the past. Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the land is a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for Consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Doctor SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of these organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence, creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, aid the digestive organs, make good rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved it beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs. Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system, and more especially those parts which are diseased. If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a PATIENT FEEL HUNGRY, if the diseased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will remove or allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts with which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. SCHENCK relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicine in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated; the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his principal office, No. 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. apr8'70-1y.

Occupational Ailments.

Fresh, pure air is a vitalizing elixir. Whoever is debarred by circumstances from unrestricted access to this invisible, but powerful stimulant, needs a medicinal invigorant of some kind. The great object should be to choose the best. Popularity is a pretty good guarantee of merit in this scrutinizing and intelligent age, and tried by this criterion Hostetter's Stomach Bitters stands first among the invigorating and regulating medicines of the present day. To the wants of persons engaged in indoor employments, especially in crowded factories where even with the best possible ventilation the atmosphere is always in some degree polluted, this salubrious vegetable tonic is peculiarly adapted. The nature of the ingredients is no mystery. It consists of an absolutely pure diffusive stimulant, tinctured—or rather surcharged—with the fluid extracts of sanatous roots and barks and herbs. The pharmacopœia has its tinctures, but what are they? The juice of only a single root or bark or plant is present in each. Not one of them combines the three properties of a tonic, an alterative, and an aperient. All these elements are blended in the Bitters; nor are these the sum of its medicinal recommendations. It is also a blood depurent and an antispasmodic.

The baleful effect which air that has been partially exhausted of its oxygen by frequent breathing produces on the vital organization, is notorious, and when to this devitalized atmosphere is superadded the mephitic vapor of hot air furnaces, it becomes deleterious and depressing in the extreme. To enable the system to bear up, even for a few hours each day against the debilitating influence of a vitiated atmosphere, a wholesome tonic and alterative is urgently required. This grand desideratum is supplied in Hostetter's Bitters, which as a strength-sustaining, health-protecting agent has no rival either among officinal or advertised medicines.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

A Great Sermon by A Little Preacher.

PAPA GOES THERE.

"Mayn't I go with you, papa? Oh, please say I may, won't you?"

The words were uttered in a plaintive and sadly entreating tone, the hands of the speaker clasping the knees of the listener.

It was a boy of seven years who lisped them; a beautiful boy, with fair high brow around which there clustered a glorious wreath of auburn curls; with dark flashing eyes, cheeks rosy with health, lips like the cherries of summer and a voice like the birds that taste them. The eyes were full of tears then, and the lips quivered.

It was a man of some thirty five who listened to this plea; a man who had been of a noble and princely bearing. Ay, had been, but the blighting truth was written in his face. His locks were matted; his forehead scowling; his eyes red, but not with tears; there were furrows on his cheeks, too, and a brutish expression were on the once handsome lips. Twice did the little boy address him ere he answered. Then, pushing the child rudely from him, he said, in a stern voice, "No, no! It's no place for you."

Again the fair, small hand clasped the knees.

"You go, papa. Why can't I go too? Do let me."

For a moment the heart of the inebriate seemed to wake from its sleep. He shuddered as he thought of the character of the place his pure-souled boy would enter should he grant his request. He took the child tenderly in his arms and kissed him as of old; then putting him down he said kindly:

"You must not ask me again to take you there. It is no place for little boys," and seizing his hat hurried from the room, murmuring to himself as he paced the way to the brilliant bar-room, "and no place for men, either. Would to God I had never found the way."

For a long time Willie stood just where his father had left him; then turning to the few embers that faintly glowed upon the hearth, he sat down in his little chair, and resting his head upon his mothers's lap, said earnestly:

"Mamma, why isn't that pretty store a good place for little boys? Papa loves to go there."

It was a trying question to the poor, heart broken woman. She had so far kept from her son the knowledge of his father's sin. She could not bear that he should look with shame upon him, or that his pure and gentle heart should thus commune with so intense a grief. Kindly she toyed with his hair for a while, then said, endearingly:

"Papa knows better than you what is best for his little boy. When you are older you will learn why he does not wish to take you."

Then rising she carefully put down her babe upon its little bed and tied on her hood and cloak.

"Mind the cradle now, Willie; I'll come back soon, and then you shall have some supper, and a nice fire to sit by, too," and taking a large basket of ironed clothes she went out. A wealthy mother would have trembled at the bare idea of leaving so young a child at nightfall all alone with an infant to care for, and an open fire to sit beside. But poor Mrs. M. knew well she could trust Willie with his sister, and as for burning up there were not coals enough to thaw his fingers. No, she did not fear to leave him for he had thus been left many a time and had carefully obeyed her.

And he meant to now; but poor fellow his thoughts would wander to that brilliant corner store, where he knew his father always went at evening, and his brain was busy with eager wanderings. He knew his father loved to go, and it must be very pleasant there, for he never came home till long after Willie was asleep. What lay behind those scarlet curtains was a mystery he sought in vain to unravel.

At length he whispered eagerly, as if to encourage a longing wish:

"Papa used to tell me if I wanted to know anything very bad to persevere and I should find out. Now I do want to know what makes him love to go to that place—I know there must be pretty things behind these windows. I shouldn't wonder"—and his cheeks were glowing—"I shouldn't wonder if it was a fairy house. Why can't I go?"

Poor Willie! Temptation to know was too strong to be resisted; so he hunted through the closet for a candle, for our little Willie was a thoughtful little fellow and would not leave his little sister to the only danger that could menace her. He found a bit of tallow dip and lighted it, drew the stand close to her, that the flame might scare away the rats and mice should they sally out ere his return.

"I won't stay long, pretty dear," said he, pressing a tender kiss on her sleeping lips, and drawing the blanket closer over her fair arms. "No, I'll come back soon, but I so want to take just one little peep."

Swiftly his little feet bore him over the pavement, and in a trice he stood beside the curtained window.

"How light it is, and how they laugh and talk. It must be funny there."

A cold November blast swept around the corner as he spoke, penetrating his thin summer clothing and causing his flesh to quiver and his teeth to chatter.

"I don't believe they'd hurt me if I should go in awhile, I'm such a little boy, and I am so cold out here," he said as he pushed the door carefully from him, slipping in and closing it without a "breath of noise." For a moment he was bewildered by the light and clatter but finding that no one seemed to notice him, he strode toward the glowing grate and spread out his purple palms before the blaze. The group of men that encircled the bar were drinking when he entered. Soon, however, they sat down their glasses and dispersed about the room.

"Halloo!" said one in a loud tone as going to the fire he spied little Willie. "What are you doing here, my little fellow? Who are you and what do you want?"

"I don't want anything only to see what you do here. My name is Willie M. My papa loves to come here and it looked so pleasant through the window I thought I'd come too. But I must not stay long for I've left the baby alone."

The man's tones were softened as he spoke to him again.

"And where is your mother, my little boy?"

"O, she's gone to take home the wash, sir. Papa don't get as much work as he used to once, and we are very poor now, and she has to help him."

"And does it look as pleasant in here as you thought it would, my child?"

"O, yes, it does, sir. I don't wonder papa loves to come here, it's so cold and dark at home. But I should think he would bring mamma and me and little sis. How she would laugh to see this fire, and all these pretty bottles, and those flowers with lights in them. Please, sir," said he earnestly, and he seized the rough hand of the listener, "please sir, tell me why little boys can't come here with their fathers?"

"For God's sake do not tell him Bancroft," said a deep anguished voice, "He thinks me pure and good; but, oh, heavens! what a wretch I am. My boy—my boy!" and Willie was clasped in his father's arms.

"You have saved me from earth's vilest hell, for here with my hands on thy sinless brow, I promise never again to touch the cup. And my brothers in sin, as you value your souls' salvation, do not tempt me to break my vow. Help me, heaven—help me, men, so to live hereafter that I may never blush to take my boy with me," And taking his boy in his arms, he went swiftly out.

Silently the door closed after them, and silence dwelt in the saloon behind them. The preacher had been there in cherub form, and crazy, loose, unholy thought, or light and ribald jest was hushed. One by one they stole away to their homes, and many a wife wore smiles that night; nor did the old bartender, even, curse the little one who had robbed him of so many dimes. The memory of a little boy whose curly head had been for many years lying under the sod in the churchyard was too dear, and he mumured to himself, as he stirred the fire:

"Who knows what I might have been had my little boy been spared to me."

"Don't you like me, papa? Are you cross at me?" asked little Wille, while they stood a few moments on the pavement; for the scene in the room was all an enigma to him, and he feared a reproof.

"I was wondering what mamma would like best for supper," said the father.

"Was you? was you?" was the eager question in a glad voice. "O, then, I know you ain't cross. O, get oysters, and crackers, and tea, papa; and candle, too, because there's only a little bit of a piece. And please, papa, tell mamma not to be cross with me 'cause I left the baby. I don't believe she will, though, 'cause may be you wouldn't have come home so soon, and she does love to have you at home so much. O, I feel just like crying, I feel so glad."

"And I feel like crying, too," said the father solemnly. And ere midnight he did cry, and his wife, but they were holy tears, washing his heart of the dust that had gathered on its beauty, and hers of the sorrow that had draped it like a pall.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

Some New Ideas on Wheat Culture.

TOO MUCH SEED USED.

Among farmers in this country, as well as in Europe, the question as to the proper amount of seed to be used in the cultivation of grain has of late received considerable attention. We have long been convinced that in raising wheat too much seed to the acre is used, and have said that wheat should be planted, not sowed. If this is done at the proper time, winter wheat may be raised with as much certainty as spring wheat; indeed, we think with more certainty, and every one knows that winter wheat, when it succeeds, yields a larger crop and of better quality. Let it be planted as early as it can be without danger of the seed stalk starting before the frost, and the plant will become well rooted, and unless the water stands upon the surface it will not suffer from the winter.

We are inclined to believe that wheat put into the ground from two to four inches deep, in rows sixteen or eighteen inches apart, with the grains not less than six inches apart in the row, would yield, with proper cultivation afterward, double the number of bushels usually obtained per acre.

Why should wheat unlike other crops deteriorate both in quantity and weight, as it is well known that it does? Corn is not only kept up to its full standard, but constantly improved, by selecting the best grains for seed, and giving it clean culture and allowing each plant sufficient space in which to spread its roots and find nourishment. New corn sown broadcast and so thick that it would shade the ground and thus keep down the growth of weeds, and the corn for seed taken from the average products of the field, how long before it would depreciate as much as the wheat crop has done?

The idea that wheat must grow so thick as to shade the ground in the spring, and thus favor the catch of grass seed which we usually sow with it, or so thick as to smother the weeds in the rich but poorly cultivated soils of the west, is we believe all wrong. We ask why grass seed should be sown at all with wheat? It can be sown to better advantage after the wheat is harvested, if the wheat has been properly cultivated. The wheat needs the whole strength of the soil, while it is growing, as much as does the corn, and the weeds should be cut down by cultivation in the wheat field as well as in the corn field.

The editor of the Prairie Farmer in discoursing upon this subject makes some very sensible remarks, which we would commend to the consideration of eastern as well as western wheat growers. He says: "If wheat is sown thick enough to keep weeds down it is sown thick enough to keep down a large number of spires that would grow and produce seeds, 'some an hundred fold, some sixty fold and some thirty fold,' if there was room enough for them to develop.

"How many of our farmers are aware how near together the grains of wheat lie when they sow two bushels of wheat to the acre! and yet some sow heavier than that. One peck to the acre will put four grains on every square foot of the land, and it is highly probable that these are more than would grow to the best advantage. The truth is that very few of us have ever seen the product of a single grain of wheat that was growing to the best advantage in regard to space and cultivation. One grain of wheat in soil free from weeds, and kept mellow, as we do the soil around some vegetables, would show a product as different from what we see in an ordinary broadcast wheat field as the solitary mountain oak differs from the puny sapling in the shady forest.

"When the time comes that we plant, hoe and cultivate wheat, a part of the extra expense of tending it will be defrayed by the saving of seed, from the difference of the two bushels or more which many now use, and the peck that will be spread over the same ground."—New England Farmer.

PHOENIX PECTORAL CURES COUGH!
PHOENIX PECTORAL CURES COUGH!
PHOENIX PECTORAL CURES COUGH!

25 CENTS.

$1.00

The Phoenix Pectoral will cure the diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Cough, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Sore Throat Hoarseness, Whooping Cough, and Pulmonary Consumption. This medicine is prepared by Dr. Levi Oberholtzer of Philadelphia, and formerly of Phoenixville, Pa., and although it has only been offered for five years, more than one million bottles have already been sold, and the demand for it is increasing every day. Many of the Retail Druggists buy it in lots of five gross, and not a few of the Country Storekeepers try one gross at a time. Nearly every one who has ever sold it testifies to its popularity, and nearly all who have used it, bear testimony to its wonderful power in curing Cough. We are confident that there is no known medicine of such great value to the community as the Phoenix Pectoral.

It has cured cases of the most painful and distressing cough, of years standing.

It has given instant relief in spells of coughing.

It has instantly stopped the paroxysm of Whooping Cough, and greatly shortened its duration.

It has cured Croup in a few minutes.

Consumption has been cured by it, where all other remedies had failed to do good.

Hoarseness has been cured by it in a single night.

Many physicians recommend it, and others use it themselves and administer it in their practice while others oppose it because it takes away their business.

We recommend it to our readers and for further particulars, would refer you to the circular around the bottle where you will find numerous certificates given by persons who have used it.

It is so pleasant to the taste that children cry for it.

It is a stimulating expectorant, giving strength at the same time that it allays the cough.

The proprietor of this medicine has so much confidence in its curative powers from the testimony of thousands who have used it that the money will be refunded to any purchaser who is not satisfied with the effects.

It is so cheap that all can buy it.

Price 25 Cents, Large Bottles $1.00

It is prepared only by

LORILLARD'S "EUREKA" Smoking Tobacco | is an excellent article of granulated Virginia; wherever introduced it is universally admired. It is put up in handsome muslin bags, in which orders for Meerschaum Pipes are daily packed.

LORILLARD'S YACHT CLUB Smoking Tobacco | classed by all who consume it as the "finest of all;" it is made of the choicest leaf grown; it is anti-nervous in its effect, as the Nicotine has been extracted; it leaves no disagreeable taste after smoking; it is very mild, light in color and weight, hence one pound will last as long as 3 of ordinary tobacco. In this brand we also pack orders every day for first quality Meerschaum Pipes. Try it and convince yourselves it is all it claims to be, "THE FINEST OF ALL."

LORILLARD'S CENTURY Chewing Tobacco. | This brand of Fine Cut chewing tobacco has no equal or superior anywhere. It is without doubt the best chewing tobacco in the country.

LORILLARD'S SNUFFS | have now been in general use in the United States over 110 years, and still acknowledged "the best" wherever used.

If your storekeeper does not have these articles for sale, ask him to get them; they are sold by respectable jobbers almost every where.

Circular of prices forwarded on application.

ORANGEVILLE ACADEMY.

ORANGEVILLE, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA

PROF. E. J. SCHOONOVER, Principal,
MRS. E. J. SCHOONOVER, Preceptress,

This institution, for the education of young Ladies and Gentlemen, will re-open under charge of Prof. Schoonover, on MONDAY April 4, 1870. Teachers, of acknowledged ability and high order of talent, will be employed in each department, and no effort spared to secure to pupils thorough and judicious culture.

The course of instruction will include all the branches usually taught in High Schools and Seminaries of the first rank.

Special attention given to Normal School training and Commercial instruction.

TERMS:

Primary Department.......... $3 to $5 per Quarter
Higher Branches.......... $5 to $8 per Quarter

LOCATION:—This excellent institution is located in a pleasant village of about six hundred inhabitants—free from the temptations of a large city—about six miles from the Rail with daily communication to the different roads. The buildings are situated upon an elevation, surrounded by a beautiful grove, and perfectly healthy.

CALENDAR FOR 1870:—Spring session begins April 4th, 1870 and continues 13 weeks, following which there will be a vacation of six weeks. Fall term commences August 15, 1870, continuing 11 weeks. Winter term opens November 7, 1870 continuing 11 weeks.

EXPENSES:—Board can be obtained in private families at from $2.50 to $4.00 per week, or desirable rooms will be furnished to students wishing to provide for themselves.

Scholars will be admitted at any time during the session although it is preferable to commence with the term.

For further particulars, address the Principal, at Orangeville, Pa.

Sewing Machines.

GROVER & BAKER'S SEWING MACHINES.

The following are selected from thousands of testimonials of similar character, as expressing the reasons for the preference for the GROVER & BAKER Machines over all others.

* * * "I like the Grover & Baker Machine, in the first place, because, if I had any other, I should still want a Grover & Baker; and having a Grover & Baker, it answers the purpose of all the rest. It does a greater variety of work and it is easier to learn than any other."—[Mrs. J. C. Croly (Jenny June).

* * * "I have had several years' experience with a Grover & Baker Machine, which has given me great satisfaction. I think the Grover & Baker Machine is more easily managed, and less liable to get out of order. I prefer the Grover & Baker, decidedly."—[Mrs. Dr. Watts, New York.

* * * "I have had one in my family for some two years; and from what I know of its workings, and from the testimony of many of my friends who use the same, I can hardly see how anything could be more complete or give better satisfaction."—[Mrs. General Grant.

* * * "I believe it to be the best, all things considered, of any that I have known. It is very simple and easily learned; the sewing from the ordinary spools is a great advantage; the stitch is entirely reliable; it does ornamental work beautifully; it is not liable to get out of order."—[Mrs. A. M. Spooner, 56 Bond Street, Brooklyn.

* * * "I am acquainted with the work of the principal machines; and I prefer the Grover & Baker to them all, because I consider the stitch more elastic. I have work now in the house which was done nine years ago, which is still good.—[Mrs. Dr. Mc Cready, No. 41 East Twenty-third Street New York.

* * * "More than two-thirds of all the sewing done in my family for the last two years has been done by Grover & Baker's Machine, and I never had a garment rip or need mending, except those rents which frolicsome boys will make in whole cloth. It is in my opinion by far the most valuable of any I have tried."—[Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

* * * "The Grover & Baker Sewing Machine has rendered in every respect the most perfect satisfaction. It combines so many advantages with beauty of execution and economy in price that it is a necessity in every household."—Mrs Governor Geary, Harrisburg, Pa.

* * * "I have had the Grover & Baker Machine for ten or twelve years in constant use in my house. I have seen and known every kind of family sewing, both personal and household, accomplished upon the Grover & Baker Machine to the entire satisfaction of all who were concerned."—[Rev. Stephen H. Tyng.

* * * "I find the Grover & Baker stitch will wear as long as the garments do—outwear the garment in fact. The stitch will not break on bias seams, when stretched, as others do; and neither does it draw the work."—[Mrs. Dr. Whiting, 4 East Twenty-fourth Street, New York.

* * * "We have a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine for seven years in constant use, hemming, felling, tucking, and everything that the fingers can do. It is preferred over all others on account of its durability of work, elasticity, and strength of stitch, ease of movement, and simplicity of construction."—[Mrs. Gen. Buel.

* * * "There could be no greater comfort in a family than a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine. I have used one for the last nine or ten years, and I think it is decidedly the best family Sewing Machine."—Mrs. Alice B. Whipple, wife of Rev. Dr. Whipple, Sec. Am. Mis. Association.

* * * "I have had an opportunity of examining and using other varieties of machines; but I very much prefer the Grover & Baker stitch, for strength, elasticity, and beauty. I have seen no other machine so simple in its construction, or so easily understood and kept in order."—Mrs. E. D. Sanborn, St. Louis.

* * * "During the past eleven years I have had a Grover & Baker Sewing Machine in constant use, and it has never required the least repair. I take great pleasure in recommending the Grover & Baker as the very best sewing machine for family use."—[Mrs. J. G. Phyfe, 158 West Twelfth street, New York.

* * * "It is so simple in its structure that it is exceedingly difficult to get it out of order. Both of my little girls—one five-and-a-half and the other four years—can sew straight seams on it without assistance."—[Mrs. A. C. Foss, wife of Rev. Archibald C. Foss, 203 West Thirtieth street New York.

* * * "The Grover & Baker Machine is such a benefit to mankind that I often feel as though it would do me good to trumpet its praises far and near. The one I have is of the plainest kind, but I would not exchange it for the most expensive I ever saw of any other make."—[Mrs. Wilson wife of Prof. Wilson, of Hobart College.

* * * "The simplicity of its construction, the facility with which its use is acquired, the beauty, strength, and elasticity of its stitch, and its adaptability to all kinds of work, are qualities which do not all belong at once to any other machine."—Prof. Henshaw, of Williston Seminary.

* * * "My wife is delighted with her Grover & Baker Sewing Machine. She prefers the Grover & Baker to any other she has seen."—[Rev. A. A. Fisher, Philadelphia Conference.

* * * "We have used one of Grover & Baker Sewing Machines for about ten years, and consider it cannot be excelled. It runs smoothly, was never out of repair, and gives very great satisfaction."—[Mr. Edwin Hunt, St Lake street Chicago.

The Grover and Baker Sewing Machine Company manufacture both the Elastic Stitch and Lock Stitch Machines, and offer the public choice of the best machines of both kinds, at their establishments in all the large cities, and through agencies in nearly all towns throughout the country. Price Lists and samples of sewing in both stitches furnished on application to Grover & Baker S. M. Co., Philadelphia, or to
